St. Sebastian Students Heat it Up and Drop It During Catholic Schools Week

AKRON – Seventh- and eighth-grade students at St. Sebastian Parish School in West Akron got into a heated competition over hot water and took a crack at keeping an egg from breaking when dropped during Catholic Schools Week in early February.

The seventh-grade students participated in the Keep the Heat contest, challenged with building devices that were lightweight and good insulators to keep hot water as warm as possible for 15 minutes. The winners are: (7-Gold) First place, The Blondiezzz: Maddie Grosklos, Sydney Huckabee, Taylor Rooney; second place, Banana Split: Alex Speck, Patrick Walter; third place, Firecrackers: Sara Kincaid, Katarina Zuder; (7-Green) First place, Hot Tamales: Emily Scolaro, Caitlin Sivec, Michaela Yost; second place, Pyromen: Matt Dujanovic, Andrew Pearson; and third place, Sunshine: Anna DeKemper, Holland Erb, Maria Paparella.

The eighth-grade students took part in the Naked Egg Drop. Their task was to build devices designed to keep an egg from breaking when dropped from heights of 1 to 5.5 meters. The winners are: (8-1) First place, NED: Chad Kanakkanatt, Noah Sutter; second place, Two Eggs in a Nest: Allison Coughlin, Sarah Hackney; third place, Eggs = mc2: Chris Morris, Alexander Reimund, Owen Salyers; (8-2) First place, Egg Bombs: Matt Caprez, Sam Doria, John McGee; second place, Egg K-74U's: Christopher Thomas; and third place, Brazzers Eggroll Company: Noah Lin, Mason Ulrich.
